Looking beyond South Africa

Why invest internationally?

Investing offshore provides access to international opportunities and expertise to ensure you make the most of your wealth. A portfolio that combines local and international investments provides the following:

Global diversification – investing internationally gives you access to different countries, currencies and economies. International markets open up access to a wide range of asset classes and products to ensure your portfolio diversification.

Reduced volatility – investing in a range of markets, both emerging and developed, can diversify the risks linked to market movements.

Currency benefits – giving you the opportunity to invest in currencies other than the rand to diversify your currency base, which can help reduce risk.

Mitigation of geopolitical risks – investing globally across different countries can reduce the impact of governmental or geographical risks affecting a significant percentage of your portfolio, and potentially meaning you having to defer wealth goals.

International mobility – having an international portfolio can assist in your future planning, whether you are moving or studying abroad.

Informed decisions

We value your time as much as you do, which is why you can access our full range of services through a central point of contact.

Your wealth advisor in South Africa, who is supported by a team of specialists, will work closely with you and your professional advisors to understand your requirements and provide a complete range of local and international wealth management services.

If you wish to extend your financial affairs beyond South Africa, or emigrate, we can introduce you to our international specialists. Discussions will always include an international dedicated relationship manager, who will maintain regular contact to track your progress towards your wealth goals, regardless of where you or your wealth are located.

How to invest offshore

South African residents over the age of 18 can apply for the following exchange control allowances to invest directly abroad:

- Single Discretionary Allowance (SDA)
A R1 million single discretionary allowance per calendar year, which can be used for any legal purpose including travel, gifts, etc. A valid South African identity card or document is required when using this allowance.
- Foreign Investment Allowance (FIA)
A foreign investment allowance of R10 million is available to those holding a tax compliance status (TCS) from the South African Revenue Service. Using FIA requires a TCS letter with a PIN.

South African residents may also apply to externalise more than R11 million, subject to obtaining a TCS and following a more stringent verification process.

If you already hold permissible foreign assets abroad, we can help you manage them.

Either through your usual wealth advisor in South Africa, or directly via our international offices in the UK, Isle of Man and Jersey.

All of which are well respected jurisdictions offering effective regulatory and fiscal governance, and depositor protection.

International investment vehicles

Often referred to as a wrapper, we can offer a single, convenient investment vehicle that enables you to consolidate and manage your international investments tax efficiently. Specifically designed for South Africans, it aims to provide the potential for growth of assets over the long term.

The open architecture structure can offer direct offshore exposure for South African residents, trusts, companies and offshore trusts in a more tax-efficient manner, offering the benefits of tax reporting and administration and succession planning.

As a platform, it also provides consolidated reporting, simple switching procedures, lower fund management fees and access to multiple asset managers via a single portal.

Structure and transfer your wealth

Access globally integrated wealth management advice and specialist technical expertise

Having helped clients structure their inter-generational global wealth for more than a century, we have accumulated a considerable amount of experience and specialist expertise. Legislation that affects estate planning and structuring advice – locally and around the globe – is constantly changing. Our team of fiduciary specialists stay abreast of these changes and work closely with your wealth advisor, so you can focus on growing your wealth.

In addition, our advice is always relevant to your personal circumstances, ensuring your global wealth is structured according to your unique needs, goals and financial aspirations.

What does wealth structuring and estate planning involve in practice?

- Structuring your global wealth optimally both during your lifetime and for after your death.
- Planning for any major events (for example, marriage, emigration, divorce and death).
- Understanding the financial impact of death.
- Making provision for these costs and understanding complex taxes, such as situs taxes.
- Having a valid, up-to-date will that deals with your global assets no matter where they are located.

How you benefit

- Have peace of mind that your global wealth is structured in a way that allows for changes in your circumstances, regulations and best practice over time and that it provides protection against risks.

- Be confident that, when you pass away, your global wealth will be distributed the way you intended.
- Protect your beneficiaries, children and other vulnerable family members and minimise your loved ones' financial stress at a difficult time.
- Avoid any unnecessary delay in the pay-out of assets and inheritances.
- Minimise costs such as taxes.
- Be confident that, regardless of local or international uncertainty, your wealth is optimised from both a South African and an international point of view.

How we help you structure your global assets to meet your needs, goals and financial aspirations.

We advise you on the different legal asset or ownership options available locally and internationally.

Estate planning consequences of the different legal asset or ownership options

We understand and apply our legislative expertise and practical experience to help you understand the estate planning consequences of the different legal asset or ownership options so that you can make informed decisions.

Appropriate succession planning

We help you define to whom, when and how you wish to transfer your global assets and interests.

Asset ownership

Structuring the legal ownership of your South African and international assets is vital to ensure that you and/or your family retain access to and control over these assets if you become incapacitated, face sequestration or pass away. There are a number of factors to consider and we can help you to choose the best legal ownership options for you.

Factors to consider:

Continuity

Effective distribution of your assets after death

Protection of your dependants

Protection of your assets from seizure

Flexibility

Tax costs and administration implications

Legal ownership options for international assets – overview

Important

The tables below are a useful starting point, but it's important to consider the conditions and limitations in detail, since these can also affect your choice.

	Sole name*	Joint names	Trust	Company*	Trust and company
	Owning the international asset in your name only.	Jointly owning the international asset with one or more other persons.	Setting up an international trust and placing international assets in the trust.	Incorporating an international investment holding company and holding shares in the company in your personal capacity.	Setting up an international trust and using the trust to fund an international investment holding company via a loan or issuing shares, with the trust as the shareholder (so-called two-tier structure).

* The ✓ indicated above under:

- sole name will only apply under certain circumstances where assets held in sole name are held via an endowment policy; and
- company apply to the actual ongoing management of the assets held in the company.

UK situs assets

The tax levied in South Africa on deceased estates is commonly known as estate duty. Perhaps not so commonly known is that the tax levied in the UK on deceased estates is called inheritance tax. This tax is generally levied in the UK on assets that are classified as UK situs assets, even when these situs assets are owned by non-residents.

Which assets are subject to UK situs taxes?

'Situs' is Latin for 'position' or 'site'. The situs of an asset is therefore generally the place where an asset is deemed to be located for legal purposes, for example:

- the location of immovable property;
- the place where a share register is maintained; or
- the place where a company has been incorporated.

When you own UK assets, you potentially become liable for taxes in this jurisdiction, including income tax, capital gains tax and estate tax. These taxes can have a significant impact on your long-term outcomes, which is why it is critical to get specialist advice about the different ways to acquire foreign assets and structuring your international wealth.

Emigration

Emigration is a complex process. If you have emigrated or are considering emigration, we have a specialist international team that is available to South African residents relocating to the UK or elsewhere in the world. We are experienced in working with internationally mobile families.

Everyone's situation will be different. Depending on your financial situation in South Africa and the country you are moving to, the implications will vary. That is why getting help from our international specialists can go a long way in helping you make informed decisions.

Our integrated international approach offers the following:

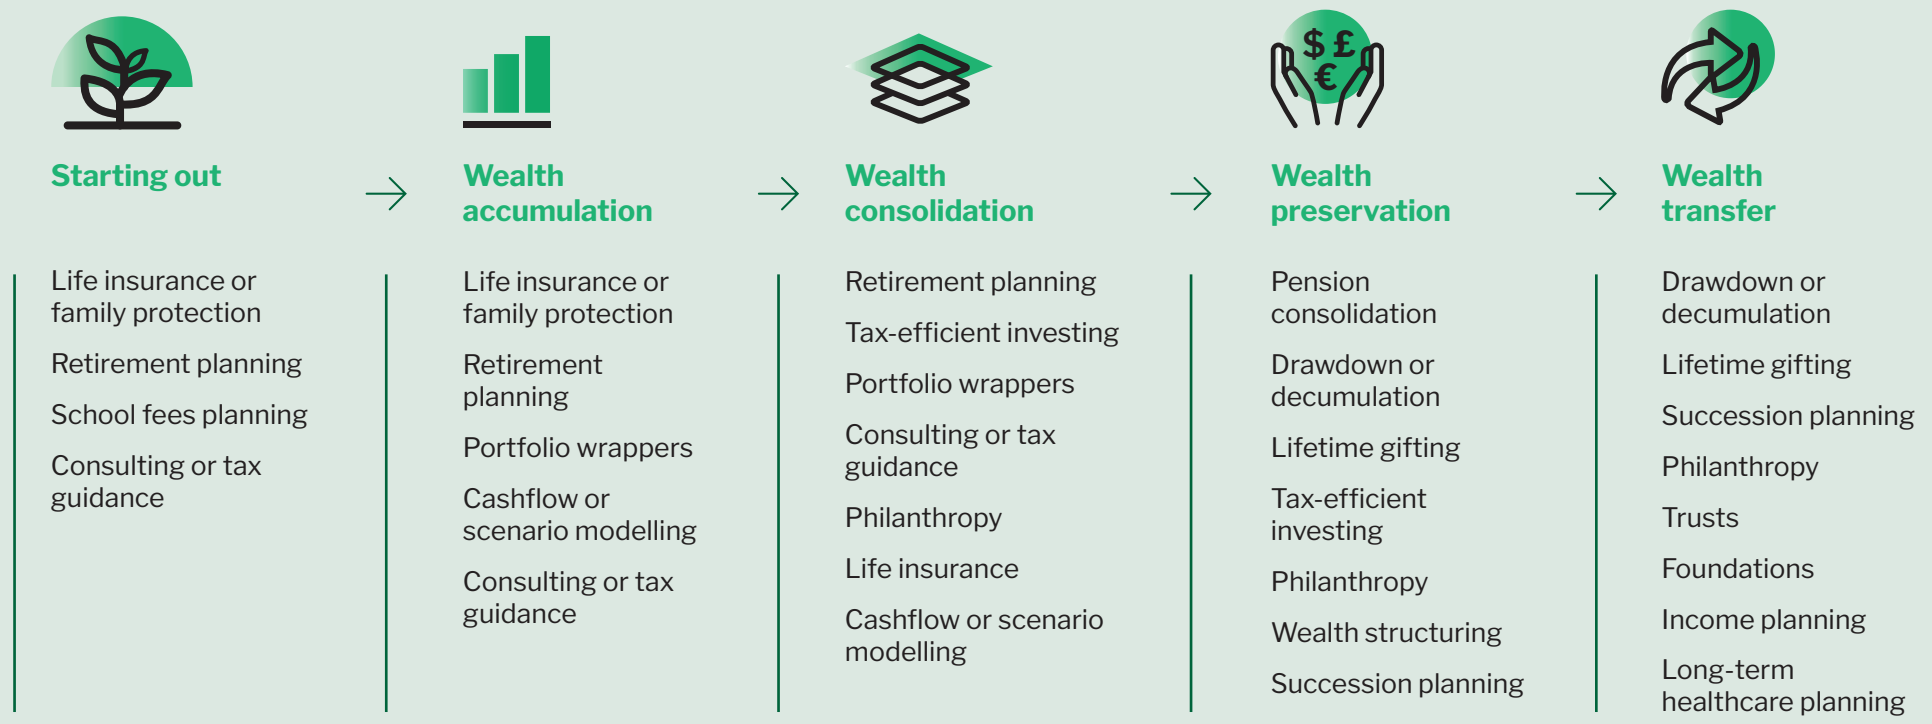

- Seamless transfer of funds from South Africa to your international Focus account.
- A global view of your wealth through our digital infrastructure.
- Global wealth management – using South African private bankers and/or the international team depending on where you will be spending the majority of your time.
- Wealth planning from a global perspective – retirement and cash flow management for lending serviceability and lifestyle funding.
- Lending for regulated mortgages or buy-to-let property – blending portfolio backed lending with a mortgage over property, if required.
- Consultations before your move to plan ahead.
- Management of tax considerations by working with external tax consultants.
- Opening of banking accounts in advance.
- Ringfencing of assets for tax planning.

International wealth planning advice

Whatever the source of your wealth, if your international affairs become more complex or you spend increasing time overseas, or even become a resident of another country, we believe there is an opportunity to maximise its potential through our international advisory approach. By understanding what is important to you and what success means for you, we can agree a personalised wealth plan that will ensure your global financial decisions connect your current reality to your future goals.
