Why diversify your wealth internationally?

By investing internationally, you enjoy exposure to a wider range of companies, industries, geographies, and currencies.

In addition, economic cycles influence markets differently, which means that when one market is up, another one may be down.

By diversifying you can smooth out your gains and losses for a better long-term outcome.

Get better long-term returns

Diversify your wealth internationally to generate better returns and reduce risk.

Reduce the risk of potential losses

Protect against losses from political, economic, market and concentration risk (exposure to one economy and currency).

Fund international expenses

Having funds available offshore can make it easier to pay international expenses, like travel or your children's education abroad.
